An Explanation of Ex-Stiornop-Con-erat Wallace's Statements-A Sat-isfactory Paragraph.

Athers Constitution: The interview with Es Athersey-General Wallace, concerning Microphils, recently published in these commas, may do Memohis an injustice if not explained. It was the purpose of Mr. Wallace to show what svila resulted

Mr. Wallace to show what ovils resulted from a neglect of sanitary precautions, and he pictured Memphis at its worst. It is a fact, however, that within the past few years Memphis has accomplished wonders in sanitary progress. She has put down forty-three miles of sewers, as many miles of drain tiles, paved filteen miles of streets and five miles of sileys. She is now among the cleanest cities in the country. It has been urged in reply to the statements made by Mr. Wallace that the population of the by Mr. Wallace that the population of the city abortly after the war was increased by the presence of numerous camp-followers, the presence of numerous camp-followers, and that the canus figures of 1870 represented the normal population. At the period referred to property values were subject to unhealthy conditions, the value of money ever being unstable and uncertain. Now things are different. Values are fixed as to property and rents bear generally a just proportion to the trade or growth of the city. Building is very active. For years the city has been free from epidemics, confidence has been free from epidemics, confidence has been o from epidemics, confidence has bee

Health reports show that the city is on did ground with a great future before her. tr. Wallace admits the existence of this tifying state of affairs at present, and nos that such would have been the case g years ago if the proper sanitary pre-tions had been taken. In a note to us, written since the publication of his inte view, he explains his figures from his poi view, he explains his figures from his point of view, and claims that the recent thorough aunitary policy adopted in Memphis vindicates his position. Mr. Wallace is among the most enthusiastic of those who predict the in the greatness of Memphis, and if his revelations as to the past have been misunderstood it is a matter of sincere regret to him. This paragraph will doubtices set all parties right.
